A database-management system (DBMS) is a collection of interrelated data and a set of programs to access those data.